Recent Goals:

I went back to school in 2012 in an effort to retool and expand my journalistic know-how. Embracing an academic career has provided many opportunities to develop a new understanding of investigative reporting and has spurred a renewed interest in science and the environment. The challenge of embracing theory, research and law in relation to journalism has driven me to examine my own ideas and personal views while projecting the facts, ideas and opinions about a particular topic; in other words, finding a voice in unbiased reporting.
